

Program of the International Weeks against Racism 2022

Commencing from March 14 to April 6, 2022

Show attitude!

Dresden has been taking part in the nationwide International Weeks against Racism since 2016. The action weeks draw our attention to the fact that discrimination, racism and group-related enmity have no place in our urban society. This year's motto "Show your attitude!" appeals to our duty to take a public stand against hate and exclusion. This is also and especially true in times of the pandemic, which has reinforced prejudice against certain groups, devaluation and hatred.

Despite difficult organizational conditions, more than forty initiatives, clubs, institutions and organizations followed my call for active participation. Around sixty registered events are evidence of the remarkable commitment of the people of Dresden to a diverse city, to respect, tolerance and democratic values. Thank you very much for that!

Different formats such as online workshops, lectures, specialist days, meetings, readings and exhibitions are aimed at preventing and reducing racism and strengthening peaceful, non-violent coexistence.

The program, which is regularly updated depending on the pandemic situation, can be found on the website of the state capital Dresden at www.dresden.de/iwgr.

We would like to thank everyone involved in the organisation and wish all participants interesting encounters!

Dirk Hilbert

Mayor of the state capital Dresden

Program subject to changes

What actually is racism?

Racism is a specific form of misanthropy and discrimination. Racism is defined as negative and derogatory attitudes and actions towards another group

Racism is defined as negative and derogatory attitudes and actions towards another group.

Racism is understood to mean negative and derogatory attitudes and actions towards another group from people. Social, cultural or even physical characteristics are arbitrarily linked with mostly negative characteristics, behavior and abilities. Racism aims to maintain power structures and privileges and to legitimize their unequal distribution. Racism can appear in many ways - for example in the form of everyday discrimination and exclusion, on the level of personal attitudes and prejudices, as institutional discrimination, e.g. B. on the labor market or in administrative action to disparagement, insults and violence.

Organizational note:

The International Weeks Against Racism in the state capital of Dresden are action weeks that, thankfully, numerous organizers are helping to organize independently and on their own responsibility. The organizers themselves are responsible for the content of the individual events. In terms of organization and content, they are responsible for the content conveyed and the statements made in their events. The opinion of the state capital Dresden is not represented in every case. This is only active in a coordinating manner and is not responsible for all activities that are carried out by non-municipal institutions. The organizers reserve the right to exercise their domiciliary rights and grant access to people who belong to extreme parties or organizations, who belong to the extreme scene or who have already made racist, nationalistic, anti-Semitic or other inhuman statements in the past deny events or exclude them from them.
